Sir.

I am submitting this resume for your consideration.

I have 48 years of varied aviation experience. I have flown aircraft from the very basic to the more sophisticated, high performance types. I have accrued more than 16,000 hours of flying experience covering Canada (from the High Arctic to the 49th), the continental U.S., Mexico, the Caribbean, the U.K., Europe, North Africa and Saudi Arabia.

As a management pilot for the FA-27, with Nordair Airlines, I was responsible for all facets of flight / simulator training, scheduling and evaluation for 42 pilots. My range of duties also included; contract training of non-Canadian pilots, new-hire pilot interviews, initial and recurrent training of Transport Canada Inspectors, amending and rewriting our Operations Manual and Ground School syllabus for our Arctic operations.

In addition to administrative responsibilities, I am comfortable instructing in simulators of all varieties, as well as in a classroom environment.

I continue to be enthusiastic about aviation and I feel confident that I am able fulfill the day-to-day requirements of these positions. I can also bring a little extra to students beginning a career in their chosen branch of aviation. I can identify a few of the highs and lows and perhaps enhance their excitement in their chosen path.

I have also volunteered at various flying club events such as; airborne tours, Unicom advisory communications and several annual "Race-The-Runway" events.

From the very beginning, at the private level, I have thoroughly enjoyed my career. For me, working my way up through the ranks to airline management, airshow, corporate and executive flying, has been my "living the dream" experience.

I am able to work flexible hours within a team environment and/or independently, as required. Living close by, I can easily fill in, should the need arise.

Thank you for your consideration.
Sincerely,

Captain Bruce Lothian (retired)
